OBLIGATION TO PROVIDE INFORMATION

Unemployment Security Act, 2 § of Chapter 11

The applicant of an unemployment allowance must provide the unemployment fund with the information required for the granting and payment of the allowance. If the circumstances of the recipient of the allowance change in a manner that could affect his or her right to receive the allowance or reduce the amount of the allowance, he or she must report such changes to the payer of the unemployment allowance without delay. If required, the unemployment fund may request other information than that specified on this form.

RECEIPT AND DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION

Unemployment Security Act, Chapter 13

Any secrecy provisions or other limitations on the availability of information notwithstanding, the unemployment fund is entitled to receive the information required to decide the matter being processed or to perform any other duties decreed for it, free of charge,

- from central government and municipal authorities and other public corporations;
- the Finnish Centre for Pensions, pension and insurance companies, and pension funds;
- from employers, clients or other commissioners of work, unemployment funds, employer's funds and training service providers or other educational institutes referred to in the Act on Public Employment and Business Service; and
- from the other organisers of employment promotion measures.

For the purpose of carrying out their duties, the unemployment fund is entitled to receive, free of charge,

- from the TE Office a binding labour policy statement on the labour policy requirements for receiving the allowance; and
- information on the beginning and end of any sentence from the Criminal Sanctions Agency; the Agency is required to disclose this information immediately when the person is admitted into the institution.

Any secrecy provisions or other limitations to the availability of information notwithstanding, the unemployment fund is entitled to disclose to the Employment and Economic Development Office any information, obtained in the course of carrying out its duties, on matters affecting the labour policy requirements for receiving an unemployment allowance.

Any secrecy provisions notwithstanding, the above-mentioned information can be further disclosed to the appropriate authorities for the investigation of any violations and crimes and for the pressing of charges.

Any secrecy provisions and other limitations to the availability of information notwithstanding and in addition to the rights provided for in the Act on the Openness of Government Activities, the unemployment fund is also entitled to disclose personal identity codes and other identifying information, information on paid allowances and compensations, and other equivalent information required for connecting personal data and other one-off surveillance measures necessary for the investigation of crimes and misuse involving social security benefits to ministries, the Tax Administration, and institutions or corporations managing the statutory social security system, if the benefit referred to in the Unemployment Security Act has an impact on the social security benefit for which the corporation is responsible, as well as to the police and prosecuting authority any information required to investigate and prosecute crimes. However, health information or other information describing the grounds for social assistance may not be disclosed.
